

Matthew Jette, Ph.D.

Adjunct Professor

About Thunderbird:

Thunderbird is the world's No. 1-ranked school of international business with more than 65 years of experience in developing leaders with the global mindset, business skills and social responsibility necessary to create real, sustainable value for their organizations, communities and the world. Dedicated to preparing students to be global leaders and committed global citizens, Thunderbird was the first graduate business school to adopt an official Professional Oath of Honor. Thunderbird's global network of alumni numbers 40,000 graduates in 147 nations worldwide. The school is sought out by graduate students, working professionals and companies seeking to gain the skills necessary for success in today's global economy.

www.thunderbird.edu

Areas of Expertise:

United States politics and theory, Political institutions, Public policy (health care and education policy), Electoral behavior, Democratic theory

Courses:

Regional Business Environment in North America

Matthew Jette, Ph.D. is an adjunct professor of Regional Business Environment: North America at Thunderbird School of Global Management. Dr. Jette is also an adjunct professor at Arizona State University, where he specializes in American Political Institutions, Elections, and Public Policy. Currently spending time at Harvard, Dr. Jette is exploring the consequences of contract theory in several policy arenas, including health care, education, immigration, and the economy.

Dr. Jette's industry experience includes working for Pfizer, Eli Lilly, and Merck. He has also spent time in the nonprofit sector, serving as director and on multiple panels.

Dr. Jette received his B.A. and M.A. from the University of Montana and his Ph.D. from Arizona State University.

Educating global leaders who create sustainable prosperity worldwide