For twenty plus years, Debra has developed and taught curriculum for beginning

Educating global leaders who create sustainable prosperity worldwide learners to advanced learners in listening, speaking, reading and writing. She developed curriculum in her private tutoring business, at her own school for international students (ESL by Design) and at Thunderbird. She was in business for herself for about ten years in various areas. In her private business, she worked with Food for the Hungry and the Lost Boys.



Debra received her Master's Degree in International Business from Western International University in 2010. She graduated from Daemen College in Buffalo, NY with her Bachelor of Arts degree in Humanities. She was also ESL certified.



Since one of Debra's set of grandparents only spoke Spanish, she had to learn to communicate with people from other countries since early childhood. This experience has made it possible for her to understand the frustrations that go along with trying to learn another language. She not only learned to speak Spanish, but also learned to speak French. She has family members from Greece, Italy, Brazil, Korea, Ireland, and Spain.



Debra was born and raised in the New York/New Jersey area, which also helped her learn to communicate with people from many different cultures. The New York/New Jersey area is known as the "melting pot" of the world. Debra moved to Arizona in 1985 with her husband. She raised three sons with her husband. She also has a beautiful granddaughter that she just adores.
